Low staff morale, burnout, financial challenges, workplace drama and a host of related challenges can easily make our veterinary careers less joyful. The Canadian Veterinary Medical Association’s Emerging Leaders Program can help you bring joy back into the workplace by teaching you how to cope with a variety of challenges encountered in veterinary practice. The Emerging Leaders Program offers recent graduates and experienced professionals alike, an opportunity to explore your approach to personal and professional accomplishment and how you work with colleagues and health care teammates.

Each of these issues has considerable impact on our power and relational competence with our clients and coworkers, and extends from our behaviours and success at work to our personal relationships and lives at home.

This interactive curriculum explores who we are and how we engage and connect with those around us. You can expect to leave this program with a better sense of how to infuse energy into your workplace and work effectively with others. At the end of this full-day interactive workshop participants will meet with CVMA’s Council and have the opportunity to learn what CVMA is doing to lead the profession.

Don’t miss this exceptional learning opportunity and bring your team! This unique leadership experience is open to all members of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association and the Canadian Association of Animal Health Technologists and Technicians. Any CVMA or CAAHTT member can register for a low fee of $150. CVMA members who have graduated within the last 10 years can apply for full sponsorship to participate in the program.
