DERM ON DEMAND:
USING TELEMEDICINE TO MANAGE PATIENTS WITH SKIN DISEASE

Thursday, July 9, 2020
at 8:00 p.m. (EDT)

WHAT ROLE DOES TELEMEDICINE PLAY IN YOUR PRACTICE?
DOES THIS TECHNOLOGY HAVE ITS PLACE IN THE MANAGEMENT OF PATIENTS WITH DERMATOLOGICAL ISSUES?

Now is your chance to get answers to these and other questions about the use of telemedicine in dermatology from a panel of veterinary specialists!

✓ Find out why you should embrace telemedicine in your practice, if you haven’t done so already.
✓ Discover how telemedicine is used in dermatology.
✓ Learn from veterinary dermatologists’ early experiences with telemedicine and get the inside scoop.

MEET OUR PANEL MEMBERS

Kinga Gortel
DVM, MS, Dipl. ACVD
Dr. Kinga Gortel is a veterinary dermatologist who has worked as a clinician, instructor and lecturer in Canada and the U.S. since 1999. She currently practices in the Okanagan Valley (BC) and teaches veterinary students at the Western College of Veterinary Medicine (WCVM). The author of scientific articles and book chapters in the field of veterinary dermatology, Dr. Gortel is also the immediate past president of the Canadian Academy of Veterinary Dermatology (CAVD).

Elizabeth Goodale
DVM, Dipl. ACVD
Dr. Elizabeth Goodale received her veterinary degree from the University of Guelph, and completed her dermatology residency at the University of California, Davis. After passing her dermatology boards in 2016, she worked as a clinical dermatologist at the UC Davis Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital for two years, before returning to Canada. She currently practices in Guelph, Ontario, seeing both small animal and equine dermatological cases.

Andrew Lowe
DVM, MS, Dipl. ACVD
Dr. Lowe developed a strong interest in dermatology during his final year at the Ontario Veterinary College. Following his internship in small animal medicine and surgery at the OVC, he moved to Illinois, where he completed his residency in veterinary dermatology, obtained a master’s degree in feline dermatology and became board certified by the American College of Veterinary Dermatology. Dr. Lowe worked as a veterinary dermatologist in private practice in Wisconsin for five years, before joining the staff at Alta Vista Animal Hospital in Ottawa, where he has been since 2012.

Take advantage of this rare opportunity to get insights from three recognized experts!

Sign up NOW for this exclusive live webcast at CommuniVET.com/webcast/telemedicine

* A request for CE accreditation has been submitted to all veterinary and technician governing bodies.

This webcast is made possible through the support of

Hills

Powered by CommuniVET

Click here to learn more about the Canadian Academy of Veterinary Dermatology

CommuniVET is a trademark of NET.COM.MED Inc.
© 2020 CommuniVET. All rights reserved.